HENDERSON'S HISTORIC PRESERVATION VISION STATEMENT

As a battle-born city in a battle-born state, the City of Henderson is a unique place with a unique history. It is necessary to preserve our historic places for future generations, while allowing our city to grow and evolve. To know our city's past is to understand our city's future.

This vision statement describes the mission and purpose of the City of Henderson's Historic Preservation Plan. It is the touchstone of the city's preservation plan and should guide all future preservation efforts in the City.

PURPOSE

The City of Henderson has a rich history that dates to the early twentieth century and this heritage is tangible in its cultural resources such as buildings, structures, objects, and sites. In 2012 and 2013, the City of Henderson received grants from the Nevada State Historic Preservation Office to complete a Historic Preservation Plan that will develop preservation goals, tasks, and objectives regarding its potential historic and cultural resources. The purpose of this Historic Preservation Plan is to set forth policies and a course of action for the treatment of these resources.

Henderson's identity as a city can be traced to World War II when the community developed as part of the Basic Magnesium plant that employed workers to produce magnesium for the war effort. The city was incorporated not long after the end of World War II in 1953. It is located at the southern edge of the Las Vegas Valley, and at the turn of the twenty-first century, it was part of one of the fastest growing metropolitan areas in the country. This boom in population has resulted in new development for the city, and a new focus on what to do with the older buildings, structures, and places in the community.

The preservation of these important places in Henderson will provide future generations tangible evidence of the history and heritage of the city.

Historic places portray the unique aesthetic character of a city and serve to educate and be enjoyed by its citizens. Additionally, historic preservation can provide economic benefits for a community through tourism, tax incentives, and adaptive use and rehabilitation.

This historic preservation plan provides a background on previous historic preservation efforts by the city, a brief administrative history of national and state historic preservation legislation, an analysis of historic preservation issues that Henderson faces, and a list of goals and task items to implement a new historic preservation program in the city.

BACKGROUND

Public Meetings

The City of Henderson is embarking on an effort to establish a well-defined historic preservation policy. To do this, the city held a series of public meetings to gather input that could be used to develop this historic preservation plan. Public input is an integral element to developing a historic preservation plan that is tailored to a community's specific needs, wants, and expectations.

In 2013, the City of Henderson hired ASM Affiliates, Inc. (ASM) to start the historic preservation strategic planning process. This entailed several meetings with interested parties and stakeholders; specifically, one meeting with the Henderson Historical Society, meetings with elected city officials, and one public workshop. These meetings served to educate the public about the historic preservation plan, gauge interest and foster community involvement in the historic preservation process, and to elicit information from Henderson's citizens that directly relates to the preservation needs of the city. These public meetings helped to create the goals and vision to develop this strategic historic preservation plan for Henderson.

The Henderson Historical Society is a relatively new organization that was established by a group of citizens to "foster public awareness and pride and to preserve the history of Henderson, Nevada for future generations."¹ This organization serves the city as an important ambassador to historic preservation advocacy in the city. The Henderson Historical Society and its members possess a wealth of knowledge and information that are essential to developing a city-wide historic context statement. This group also acts on behalf of historic and cultural places throughout the city. Their input during the public meetings was essential in developing this plan.

ASM also met with Henderson City Council members Debra March, Gerri Schroder, John Marz, and Sam Bateman as well as Mayor Andy Hafen. The City officials provided positive feedback on the need for a preservation plan, and in some instances offered suggestions of individuals to contact that could provide further information on historic places in the city.

In June 2013, an initial public outreach meeting was conducted for the Historic Preservation Plan process. More than 3,000 interested parties were invited through postcard invitations and emailed notification. Groups and individuals invited included:

- More than 2,000 property owners of Henderson buildings constructed prior to 1970
- 750 representatives of Home Owners Associations/property management companies
- Citizens' Advisory Committee (CAC)
- CDBG Program Advisory Committee (CDBG)
- Commission on Cultural Arts and Tourism
- Redevelopment Advisory Commission (RAC)
- Henderson Chamber of Commerce
- Henderson Historical Society
- Henderson District Public Libraries
- Preserve Nevada
- Nevada State College - History Faculty
- Greater Las Vegas Association of Realtors
- Clark County Department of Comprehensive Planning
- Bureau of Reclamation
- Bureau of Land Management - Las Vegas Field Office
- Chemehuevi Indian Tribe Administrative Office
- Colorado Indian River Tribes
- Moapa Band of Paiutes
- Fort Mojave Indian Tribe
- Las Vegas Paiute Tribe

More than 35 interested community members attended the first public meeting on June 4, 2013, including home owners, Home Owners Association/property company representatives, members of the Henderson Historical Society, members of the Chamber of Commerce, academic professors, planning professionals, library employees, realtors, City of Henderson employees, and community members that have a general interest in historic places. The focus of the workshop was to solicit and gather input from the meeting attendees about a vision statement, historic places in Henderson, and desired preservation outcomes. While there was a collective discussion on possible vision statements, the majority of the meeting was spent in smaller break-out groups, to generate lists of significant time periods, themes/events, and persons associated with the history of Henderson. The meeting attendees identified the general locations of significant places in Henderson that were associated with these time periods. They also identified significant themes, events and persons in Henderson's history using large maps and worksheets. Additionally, each break-out group identified successful outcomes that could be the result of establishing a Historic Preservation Plan. The results from these meetings were synthesized into a report that the city used as a departure to conduct two more public meetings in November and December 2013. Those subsequent meetings focused on creating lists of significant events, themes, and persons associated with the history of the city, choosing a vision statement for the historic preservation plan, as well as identifying objectives that should be implemented into the plan. The results of these items were tallied according to public vote and are attached in Appendix A. The objectives that had the highest tally count were included as task items in Chapter 6. (Note: Tallies in Appendix A are based on public vote, and as such the number of tallies indicating Individuals, Themes and Events in Appendix A do not indicate the level of historic significance for each individual, theme or event.)

In addition to public meetings, ASM also conducted a reconnaissance windshield survey of the city, focusing on sections of the city that were called out at public meetings (Map 1). The purpose of this reconnaissance survey was to recommend future parcels for survey work. The results of this survey are located in Appendix B, and are also illustrated in Map 2.

Previous Surveys

The Basic Magnesium Townsite is located in the heart of the City of Henderson. It is the oldest neighborhood in the city and consists of residential and commercial buildings that were constructed for workers of the Basic Magnesium Plant in 1942. Later subdivisions were added to this neighborhood through the 1950s.

In May 2003, the City of Henderson Neighborhood Services contracted an independent historic preservation consulting firm, 20th Century Preservation, to complete a historic resources survey of the Townsite Apartments, formerly the Basic Magnesium Women's Apartments, and 120 surrounding residential and commercial properties in the Basic Magnesium Townsite neighborhood. The survey was conducted as a result of a federally funded project that included demolition of the Townsite Apartments. Due to the age of the apartments, their potential historical significance needed to be considered in compliance with Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA). An Area of Potential Effect (APE) boundary was assigned to the surrounding 120 properties by the City. 20th Century Preservation determined that the Townsite Apartments are eligible for the NRHP under Criterion A “as a representation of the massive wartime building effort undertaken by the United States Government during World War II to satisfy the additional industrial and housing demands” (pertaining to the theme of Community Development) and because they remained an intact example of a gender-segregated building which reflected the social conscience of the role of women during that time (pertaining to the theme of Social History). The Townsite Apartments were also recommended eligible under Criterion C for being good intact examples of temporary wartime construction. 20th Century Preservation also concluded that 16 of the 120 residential and commercial properties included in the boundaries of the APE are also individually eligible for the NRHP under Criteria A and C. A report and Nevada Historic Resource Inventory Forms (HRIF; predecessor to the current Nevada Architectural Resource Assessment [ARA] form) were completed for all of the resources.

This initial survey of a portion of the Basic Magnesium Townsite kicked-off a series of eight subsequent intensive surveys that were completed from May 2003 to July 2012 for a majority of the residential and commercial buildings within the neighborhood. Table 1 provides an overview of the nine previous surveys and the survey results. Because not all of the buildings within the Basic Magnesium Townsite neighborhood were surveyed, the buildings surveyed were not evaluated as contributors to a potential historic district eligibility. The survey area maps for each of the nine previously surveyed sections of the Basic Magnesium Townsite neighborhood are located in Appendix C.

2. ENABLING LEGISLATION

The recognition of historic and cultural places has been an important part of American history and heritage. The preservation of historic and cultural resources became national law in the mid-twentieth century and amendments as well as legislation concerning specific historic and cultural resources are still being passed. The current legislation supporting historic preservation of historic and cultural resources on the national and state level are as follows:

NATIONAL HISTORIC PRESERVATION ACT OF 1966 (NHPA), AS AMENDED

On October 15, 1966, United States Senate Bill 3035, otherwise known as the NHPA, was signed into law. This act enabled the federal government to set a standard by which historic and archaeological sites would be preserved. Through this legislation, the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation (ACHP), the National Register of Historic Places (NRHP), and the State Historic Preservation Offices were established. Section 106 of the NHPA mandates federal agencies undergo a review process for all federally funded and permitted projects that will impact sites listed or eligible for listing on the NRHP.

- Advisory Council on Historic Preservation: This council's role is to advise the President of the United States and Congress on historic preservation issues, to develop policies and guidelines handling any conflicts of federal agencies, and to participate in the Section 106 review process.
- National Register of Historic Places: This register is a continuing list of architectural and archaeological sites that have been nominated and designated historically significant on a national, state, or local level under one or more of four criteria (see Chapter 4 for more information on this criteria).
- State Historic Preservation Offices: State Historic Preservation Offices and Officers are responsible for historic preservation at the state level. Their role is to oversee preservation, documentation, and use of cultural resources through state and federal programs. This agency works to educate the public about the importance of our cultural heritage, provides technical support to federal, state, and local agencies and the public; and reviews federal undertakings that affect historic properties. The SHPO also helps local governments become certified to participate in the Certified Local Government (CLG) program.
- Certified Local Government program: This program is a preservation partnership between local, state, and national governments focused on promoting historic preservation at the local level. This program is jointly administered by the National Park Service and the SHPOs in each state. It encourages local communities to become recognized as a CLG through a certification process. Once a community becomes a CLG, they become eligible for special grant funding to support preservation projects in their community.
- Section 106 Review: A review process for federally funded projects that have the potential to affect historic properties.

ARCHAEOLOGICAL RESOURCES PROTECTION ACT OF 1979 (ARPA), AS AMENDED

The Archaeological Resources Protection Act (ARPA) governs the excavation of archaeological sites on federal and Indian lands in the United States, and the removal and disposition of archaeological collections from those sites. ARPA strengthened the permitting procedures required for conducting archaeological fieldwork on federal lands, originally mandated by the Antiquities Act. It also establishes more rigorous fines and penalties for unauthorized excavation on federal land.²

PALEONTOLOGICAL RESOURCES PRESERVATION ACT OF 2009 (PRPA)

The Paleontological Resources Preservation Act (PRPA) requires the Secretaries of Interior and Agriculture to manage and protect paleontological resources on federal land using scientific principles and expertise. The PRPA affirms the authority for many of the policies the federal land managing agencies already have in place for the management of paleontological resources such as issuing permits for collecting paleontological resources, curation of paleontological resources, and confidentiality of locality data. The statute establishes new criminal and civil penalties for fossil theft and vandalism on federal lands. The PRPA only applies to federal lands and does not affect private lands.³

NEVADA REVISED STATUTES

The Nevada Revised Statutes (NRS) are the current codified laws of the State of Nevada. The Statutes of Nevada are a compilation of all legislation passed by the Nevada Legislature during a particular Legislative Session.⁴ The following chapters concern elements in this historic preservation plan:

- NRS 278.0153

This chapter defines a historic neighborhood. “Historic neighborhood” means a subdivided or developed area which consists of 10 or more residential dwelling units; where at least two-thirds of the residential dwelling units are 40 or more years of age; and which has been identified by the governing body of the city or county within which the area is located as having a distinctive character or traditional quality that can be distinguished from surrounding areas or new developments in the vicinity. Distinguishing characteristics of a historic neighborhood may include, without limitation:

- Significance to the cultural, social, political or economic history of the area in which it is located;
- Association with a significant person, group or event in local, state or national history;
- Representation of an established and familiar visual feature of an area because of its location, design, architecture or singular physical appearance; or
- Meeting the criteria for eligibility for listing on the State or National Register of Historic Places.

- NRS 278.160

⁴ Nevada Revised Statutes. State of Nevada website. <http://admin.nv.gov/NRS/>

This chapter explains the necessary components of a historic preservation element which must include a historic neighborhood preservation plan. This historic neighborhood preservation plan must include, without limitation, a plan to inventory historic neighborhoods and a statement of goals and methods to encourage the preservation of historic neighborhoods; may include, without limitation, the creation of a commission to monitor and promote the preservation of historic neighborhoods and a historical properties preservation plan setting forth an inventory of significant historical, archaeological, paleontological and architectural properties as defined by a city, county or region, and a statement of methods to encourage the preservation of those properties.

- NRS 384.005

This chapter describes the establishment of a historic district by city or county in the State of Nevada. Any county or city may establish a historic district, the boundaries of which do not include the Comstock Historic District, for the purpose of promoting the educational, cultural, economic and general welfare of the public through the preservation, maintenance and protection of structures, sites and areas of historic interest and scenic beauty. This chapter describes the process to nominate and designate a historic district through a public process.

THE NEVADA STATE HISTORIC PRESERVATION OFFICE (NV SHPO)

The State Historic Preservation Office in Nevada is responsible for overseeing the preservation, documentation, and use of cultural and historic resources through state and federal programs. The SHPO serves as an administrator of the NHPA at the state level. They offer technical support to local municipalities and review projects for potential impacts on historic properties. The SHPO also administers the State Register of Historic Places and the Nevada Cultural Resource Information System (NVCRIS).

3. HENDERSON HISTORIC PRESERVATION PLAN RELATIONSHIP TO COMPREHENSIVE PLAN 2009

The City of Henderson adopted its current Comprehensive Plan in February 2006 and has since revised it in June 2009. This historic preservation plan is a stand-alone plan that can be used in conjunction with the Comprehensive Plan for future planning decisions. The City of Henderson's Comprehensive Plan highlights five major themes with related principles and policies, four of which can be applied to historic preservation. Henderson's historic and cultural resources can be directly affected by the following policies as listed in the Comprehensive Plan:

- Theme 1: Balanced Land Use

Principle 2: Redevelopment and infill will provide new opportunities in Henderson and provide for efficient use of land.

Policy 2a: Vibrant Downtown City Center

Henderson should continue to promote downtown redevelopment to make the downtown an active and vibrant center for the community. The city should initiate business incentive programs to encourage retention and investments by businesses in the downtown area. The city will also bring vibrancy into the downtown area by actively encouraging tourism opportunities as well as arts and culture in the downtown public settings and events.

Policy 2b: Plan Future Redevelopment Areas

The city should identify future redevelopment areas based on land values and areas in need of reinvestment and provide incentives to develop these areas. The city should monitor economic vitality at key commercial areas and prepare plans for future redevelopment if needed to assist specific projects and encourage redevelopment.

- Theme 2: Quality Development

Principle 1: Each of our neighborhoods will have unique characteristics and will be designed to promote variety.

Policy 1e: Enhancement & Stabilization of Established and Older Neighborhoods

The city should utilize existing programs (enforcement of Home Owner's Association maintenance requirements, etc.), as well as undertake programs targeted towards enhancement and stabilization of established neighborhoods, such as upkeep and preservation of older housing stock, design standards and guidelines for infill and redevelopment projects to encourage housing diversity, rehabilitation and upkeep of city infrastructure, and assistance for improvements to physical infrastructure.

Principle 4: Infill projects will seamlessly integrate with existing areas and improve property values.

Policy 4a. Compatible Infill for Stable Areas.

In stable areas of Henderson, infill development should be compatible with surrounding neighborhoods. The city will work with neighborhoods to define appropriate projects and compatibility. Key considerations should include identification of appropriate transitions between land uses and developments of varying intensities, and incorporation of roadway, park, open space, and trail/pedestrian connections.

Principle 8: Historically significant neighborhoods shall be preserved.

Policy 8a. Survey of Historic Neighborhoods

Neighborhoods thought to be historically significant should be verified by conducting a survey to document the qualifications of each structure against State and Federal criteria. The City should actively engage in public outreach to enlist and ensure property owner interest and support in the creation of an historic district.

Policy 8b. Establishment of Historic Districts and Neighborhoods

In any eligible neighborhood where the City and a significant majority of property owners concur in the desire to establish a historic designation, the City will take measures to accomplish that goal. Those measures could include creating a new zoning district, development standards and design guidelines, incentives, etc., as necessary.

- Theme 3: Integrated Desert Environment

Principle 1: Our community will integrate the Open Space System.

Policy 1b. Long-term Environmental Stewardship

Environmental stewardship is part of Henderson's civic responsibility and is vital for the long-term protection and preservation of open space resources and environmentally sensitive areas, including wildlife habitat, significant watercourses, historic and cultural features, and hillsides. The city will preserve and manage such areas through a variety of applicable approaches, including the establishment of management plans, obtaining necessary funding, fostering volunteerism and education, developing partnerships with non-profits, and appropriate enforcement measures.

- Theme 5: Arts and Culture

Principle 2: Our community will support development of public spaces that promote participation in local gathering and cultural events.

Policy 2b. Artistic Involvement

To the extent possible, the city will provide venues for artistic and cultural displays in our parks, civic centers, rights-of-way, transit stations, and other public spaces. Architectural design of these facilities will consider and attempt to incorporate any unique characteristics of the surrounding area in order to portray or reflect the traits of the neighborhood. The city should also promote local special events and rotating displays in order to provide a range of exposure for our residents. Local artists and designers should be involved at an early stage of design for community arts and cultural facilities and events.

4. DESIGNATION OF HISTORIC RESOURCES

Historic and cultural resources can be listed on a local, state, and/or national register. For a property to qualify for a local, state, or national register, it must meet at least one of the criteria for eligibility as established by those programs. On the national level, the NRHP has established criteria for eligibility that the State of Nevada also follows to designate resources in the state register. Currently, there are no local criteria for historic designation for the City of Henderson.

National Register Criteria for Evaluation

The quality of significance in American history, architecture, archaeology, engineering, and culture is present in districts, sites, buildings, structures, and objects that possess integrity of location, design, setting, materials, workmanship, feeling, and association, and:

- A. that are associated with events that have made a significant contribution to the broad patterns of our history; or
- B. that are associated with the lives of persons significant in our past; or
- C. that embody distinctive characteristics of a type, period, or method of construction, or that represent the work of a master, or that possess high artistic values, or that represent a significant and distinguishable entity whose components may lack individual distinction; or
- D. that have yielded, or may be likely to yield, information important in prehistory or history.

Once a resource is found to be associated with one or more of these criteria, the resource is assessed for integrity. The NRHP defines integrity as, “the ability of a property to convey its significance.”⁵ To evaluate integrity, the resource’s physical features must be considered. A historic resource retains integrity or it does not. A resource retains integrity if it possesses several, or most of the seven aspects listed below:

- Location
- Design
- Setting
- Materials
- Workmanship
- Feeling
- Association

The purpose of historic designation is to recognize and inventory significant historic and cultural resources that can be enjoyed by the public, can educate citizens, promote local tourism, and define a sense of place for a community. Local, state, and/or national designation also provides the opportunity to undergo a compliance review process for any local, state, or federal projects that have the potential to affect the resource.

⁵ How to Apply the National Register Criteria for Evaluation. National Register Bulletin 15. National Park Service. http://www.nps.gov/nr/publications/bulletins/nrb15/nrb15_8.htm#seven aspects

4. Designation of Historic Resources

Identification of properties eligible for listing usually begins with the survey and documentation of resources. Archival research is conducted to collect information such as date of construction, building permits and records, original owners, and architects and builders. Once a chain of ownership has been established, information on the relative significance of past owners can be researched as well. The site-specific history of the property can then be used to identify potential themes that the property may be associated with, related to a larger overall historic context for Henderson, or even the state of Nevada or on the national level.

5. HISTORIC PRESERVATION ISSUES IN HENDERSON

New development, urban infill, and population growth are all challenges that threaten to decrease the number of historic and cultural resources within the City of Henderson. The population growth in the early 2000s has resulted in the rapid expansion of the city. To accommodate this population growth, new development was constructed, and as a result some historic and cultural resources were lost. Additionally, Henderson was established relatively later than other U.S. cities, and therefore not enough time has passed to recognize some of the older significant resources in Henderson that have the potential to be demolished or altered. Historic preservation policy is designed to regulate the loss or preservation of significant historic and cultural resources. A historic preservation ordinance will develop an appropriate policy for the City of Henderson. This ordinance will work in conjunction with the Comprehensive Plan to incorporate the needs of a growing city and the preservation of its historic and cultural resources.

ISSUE 1: NEED FOR A CITY-WIDE HISTORIC CONTEXT STATEMENT AND INTENSIVE SURVEY

Since 1990, the City of Henderson has undergone decades of population growth at a fast pace. This population boom has resulted in new development, infill, and the need to revitalize some of Henderson's oldest neighborhoods. In order to establish and inform city planners which historic places are important to the heritage of Henderson and therefore worthy of preservation, a city-wide historic context statement is needed. Historic context statements are important in identifying significant people, events, themes, architectural styles, as well as architects/builders of a place. This historic context will be used to evaluate which places should be designated as historically significant. An intensive city-wide survey will specify what places are left, what should be preserved, what has been altered or demolished. Previous survey work has been completed for the Basic Magnesium Townsite, but a city-wide intensive survey will allow the City to plan for future development while proactively considering its historic and cultural resources. The survey should be updated every five years to consider resources that have turned 50 years old since the last survey was completed—to ensure all potentially eligible resources are considered in future city planning. (For more information on the current historic context, see Appendix D.)

ISSUE 2: HENDERSON AND THE RECENT PAST

The City of Henderson was officially incorporated in 1953. Most of the city's architecture is from the "recent past," a term that refers to the last 50 years or roughly two generations. Generally, a resource is considered for historic eligibility if 50 years has passed since its original construction. Many buildings that can be considered important resources to Henderson's history may not have reached this age requirement, and are thus subject to alteration or demolition without a historic preservation review process. To address this issue in other places in the United States, some cities have shortened the eligibility requirement to accommodate buildings that were constructed 45, 40, or even 30 years prior. The appropriate passage of time depends on the location and the amount of imminent development in an area. Specified age thresholds regarding the eligibility of a potential historic or cultural resource are indicated in the local municipality's historic preservation ordinance and/or policy.

ISSUE 3: NEED FOR A HISTORIC PRESERVATION ORDINANCE

The best way to protect historic and cultural resources in Henderson is to adopt a historic preservation ordinance. Historic Preservation Ordinances serve to define why preservation is necessary; establish a local historic register and eligibility requirements for listing, including local designation criteria; establish and define the role of a historic preservation commission; define a review process for action affecting historic and cultural resources; define an appeals process following decisions made by the board of authority; and define an enforcement provision to ensure compliance with the ordinance. A historic preservation ordinance provides a legal basis for historic preservation on the local level and is the most effective way to protect the future of a city's historic and cultural resources.

6. GOALS, OBJECTIVES, AND TASKS

The following goals, objectives, and tasks are the cornerstone of the Henderson Historic Preservation Plan. The following goals focus on the historic preservation needs of the city, based on the previous survey work completed, as well as the public outreach meetings:

GOALS:

- 1) Develop historic preservation standards that address the unique needs of the city.
- 2) Identify places and structures of historical significance that help define a sense of place.
- 3) Foster public understanding and involvement in the unique architectural and cultural heritage of the city.
- 4) Promote the private and public use of historic places for the education, appreciation, and general welfare of the citizens of Henderson.

To best achieve these goals, specific objectives and subsequent task items should be completed. These objectives encompass ideas codified through the public outreach process and address those issues in historic preservation that Henderson faces. The tasks are concrete steps to achieve those objectives and initiate a historic preservation program in the city.

Goal #1: Develop historic preservation standards that address the unique needs of the city.

Objective 1.1: Establish a local Historic Preservation Commission (HPC) / Advisory Council.

Task 1.1.1: Identify desired composition/representation of commissioners.

The City of Henderson should establish a standard composition of backgrounds to include professionals and non-professionals that comprise the HPC; i.e., archaeologists, architectural historians, historic preservation specialists, historians, architects, property owners, and subject matter experts. The number of members and term length should also be determined and set as standard.

Task 1.1.2: Establish a selection process of commission members.

The City of Henderson should establish a selection process either by nomination, volunteer, and/or appointment of HPC members using the criteria from the previous task item. The City of Henderson may use these standards to select its first HPC.

Task 1.1.3: Formalize role of HPC.

The City of Henderson, along with members of the newly formed HPC should identify the specific duties and overall role of the HPC. Tasks may include reviewing plans for renovations and modifications on designated historic properties; overseeing administrative process for signage of historic places throughout the city; supporting the development of the historic preservation ordinance; and continuing to identify places, events, and people that are significant to Henderson.

Objective 1.2: Create a local historic preservation ordinance.

Historic preservation ordinances are the most effective way to preserve historic places. These ordinances are typically administered by the local City Council and HPC. The City should tailor a historic preservation ordinance to address the specific needs and wants of Henderson. This ordinance will aid in the protection of significant historic and cultural resources in Henderson. The HPC will be instrumental in formulating this document.

Task 1.2.1: Establish a local register/inventory of Henderson's historic places.

The results of the intensive city-wide survey may establish the initial list of resources for this register. The register should be administered for consistency, maintenance, and perpetuity by the City. The register should be authorized in the historic preservation ordinance.

Task 1.2.2: Establish criteria for designation on the register.

The criteria for designation on the local register should set the standard by which resources can be eligible. These criteria codified and authorized in the historic preservation ordinance.

Task 1.2.3: Establish a process to designate a historic or cultural resource to the local register.

This process may be through the development of a local register nomination form, as well as the identification of eligible properties through survey work. This process should be authorized in the historic preservation ordinance.

Task 1.2.4: Establish process for alterations, moving, and demolition of properties listed on the local historic register.

This may be done through a Certificate of Appropriateness program, for example. The City of Henderson should establish a process, including which entity (if not both), the City Council or the HPC, will have the authority to grant or deny a project. This process should be authorized in the historic preservation ordinance.

Task 1.2.5: Consider a process that allows for financial hardships and appeals for the preceding task item.

This may be a specified appeals process and enforcement of its terms. This process should be authorized in the historic preservation ordinance.

Task 1.2.6: Establish process and criteria for the establishment of historic districts and/or overlay zones.

The City of Henderson should establish a process through which potential historic districts or historic overlay zones can be identified. In order to apply a historic overlay zone or establish a historic district, a set of standards should be instituted that includes public input specifically from home owners, stake holders, and interested parties in any potential historic district or overlay zone. In keeping with the Comprehensive Plan, this should entail a vote of a significant majority of home owners, as well as public meetings, appointing neighborhood representatives, design guidelines, and application process. This process should be authorized in the historic preservation ordinance.

Objective 1.3: Develop design guidelines to ensure compatibility of alterations, new development, and/or new infill in historic neighborhoods.

Task 1.3.1: Institute design guidelines.

Subsequent to the establishment of historic districts and/or historic overlay zones, the City should develop design guidelines to restrict inappropriate infill and alterations to historically designated neighborhoods. These design guidelines may develop through a series of charrettes with public participation. Home owners, stake holders, and interested parties can participate in the creation of design guidelines that will allow for sensible development in Henderson's historic neighborhoods.

Goal #2: Identify places and structures of historical significance that help define a sense of place.

Objective 2.1: Identify historic and cultural places that are historically significant.

Task 2.1.1: Complete a city-wide historic context statement.

A city-wide comprehensive historic context will identify which property types, themes/events, persons, architects/builders, and architectural styles are significant and will help create appropriate local criteria for historic designation. This city-wide historic context should be expanded from previous historic contexts that have been completed for the Basic Magnesium Townsite surveys. Additional research should be conducted to develop a complete chronological history of the City of Henderson up to 1970. Detailed maps and graphics should be included in the historic context statement.

Task 2.1.2: Conduct a city-wide intensive survey of the city.

Conduct an intensive survey focusing on areas/parcels that were identified in the previous reconnaissance survey completed in 2013. This survey will entail the completion of NV SHPO-mandated Architectural Resource Assessment forms (ARA forms) and Intermountain Archaeological Computer System forms (IMACS forms) for each resource if applicable. The results of this survey should be the basis for the local historic register.

Goal #3: Foster public understanding and involvement in the unique architectural and cultural heritage of the City.

Task 3.1.1: Incorporate a signage program.

Signage will aide in the recognition of historic places in the City of Henderson. The City of Henderson should develop a program by which the city can erect standard signage to educate the public on sites that have been developed and are no longer extant; historic landmarks; and other places that are found significant to the history of the city.

Objective 3.2: Utilize existing archives/ongoing research to include oral interviews.

Task 3.2.1: Conduct oral interviews.

Historians should conduct oral interviews with long-time residents of the city, focusing on earliest memories of the city and their lives. This should be completed in coordination with the Henderson Historical Society.

Goal #4: Promote the private and public use of historic places and structures for the education, appreciation, and general welfare of the citizens of Henderson.

Objective 4.1: Promote adaptive use for blighted properties.

Task 4.1.1: Use financial incentives to promote adaptive use of blighted properties.

Other cities and municipalities have developed financial incentives for potential home buyers and businesses to rehabilitate and occupy “blighted” properties.

As defined by the City of Henderson’s Property Maintenance Code, Section 15.12.020 “Blight or blighted means unsightly conditions, including but not limited to: the accumulation of debris; fences characterized by holes, breaks, rot, crumbling, cracking, peeling, or rusting; landscaping that is dead, characterized by uncontrolled growth or lack of maintenance, or is damaged; and the exterior visible use or display of tarps, plastic sheeting, or similar materials as flexible or inflexible screening, fencing, or wall covering upon a residential lot, regardless of the condition of other properties in the neighborhood.” Throughout public meetings, the citizens of Henderson have identified blighted properties as a major concern. Many of these properties are older buildings in the city, a problem that is not unique to Henderson. Several cities across the United States have addressed this problem with financial incentives for prospective buyers of such properties. A few cities and organizations that offer creative examples of financial incentives to adaptively use blighted properties are:

- Live Baltimore is an organization that is concerned about threatened neighborhoods in Baltimore, Maryland, and offers potential home buyers and business owners ways to purchase new and historic properties within the city while offering financial incentives to rehabilitate older buildings in neighborhoods that require revitalization.

<http://livebaltimore.com/>

- Healthy Neighborhoods, Inc. is an organization in the City of Baltimore that uses financial incentives to develop programs that entice potential homebuyers, such as their program Dollars for Foreclosures. Neighborhood Stabilization Program 2 (NSP2) is a federally funded effort to mitigate the impacts of foreclosed, short sale or abandoned properties. Healthy Neighborhoods, Inc. in partnership with the City of Baltimore Department of Housing and Community Development and other private entities use the NSP2 funds to address housing markets in threatened Baltimore neighborhoods. These funds allow potential home buyers to borrow at low interest rates and rehabilitate and maintain buildings in older neighborhoods.

http://www.healthyneighborhoods.org/buyandrenovate/dollars_for_foreclosures.aspx

- Live Cleveland! is a unified organization that was founded by Neighborhood Progress, Inc., Cleveland Neighborhood Development Coalition, and LiveCLEVELAND!, focused on advancing community development, positively impacting Cleveland neighborhoods, and improving the quality of life for all who live and engage in the city. This organization is much like Live Baltimore, and highlights certain financial incentives to purchase, rehabilitate and/or rent property for potential home buyers and renters in Cleveland.

<http://www.livecleveland.org/>

- City of Cleveland Tax Abatement is a tax abatement program operated by the City of Cleveland that offers citizens the temporary elimination of increased real estate taxes for potential and existing developers and homeowners. This tax abatement opportunity can apply to new construction or the rehabilitation of historic buildings.

<http://www.buyingintocleveland.com/content/city-incentives>

- Greater Circle Living is a forgivable loan program that provides access to affordable living for full-time employees of universities, hospitals, schools and other institutions in Cleveland, Ohio. Greater Circle Living offers a $10,000 loan to qualified home buyers for a down payment and/or closing costs on an owner-occupied home. The loan is forgiven after five years if the qualified home buyer is still employed at the institution and is living in the home.

<http://www.fairfaxrenaissance.org/gcl/index.html>

- Sustainable Communities Tax Credit is a program run by the Maryland Historic Trust (SHPO) which provides State income tax credits for the rehabilitation of existing buildings, both historic and non-historic, within designated areas throughout Maryland. Funds for the tax credit program are appropriated annually by the General Assembly. State law requires the Maryland Historical Trust to award the funds based on a competitive review and ranking process.

- Operation Comeback is a program run by the organization Preservation Resource Center that addresses the major concern of blighted properties in the City of New Orleans, Louisiana, after the devastation of Hurricane Katrina in 2005. Through a revolving fund, Operation Comeback offers first-time homebuyers financial incentives to purchase, rehabilitate and revitalize historic neighborhoods that were nearly destroyed and abandoned after Hurricane Katrina.

<http://www.prcno.org/programs/operationcomeback/>

The City of Henderson in partnership with community organizations and institutions can adopt similar financial incentives to rehabilitate and revitalize blighted properties in the city; thereby addressing the blight problem with creative historic preservation tactics.

Objective 4.2: Develop local grants/ incentives for preservation activities.

Task 4.2.1: Apply to become a Certified Local Government (CLG).

CLGs benefit from historic preservation grants financed by federal and state funding that is distributed by the SHPO on an annual basis. The funding is distributed to city projects such as surveys, NRHP nominations, and other historic preservation planning projects.

Task 4.2.2: Develop a City of Henderson Historic Preservation Revolving Fund.

A revolving fund is a strong local tool for preservation by a City. Endangered significant historic properties are acquired, placed under protective easement, and then sold to new owners who agree to undertake the necessary rehabilitation. All proceeds generated from the sale of Revolving Fund Program properties are returned to the fund to replenish the reserves which enables future acquisitions. One example is that of Salt Lake City:

<http://www.slcgov.com/economic-development/center-local-business-revolving-loan-fund>

The goals, objectives, and task highlighted above may best be achieved if timeframes are assigned to each. As such, the below schedule (Table 2) is recommended to successfully achieve the goals, objectives and tasks of this Historic Preservation Plan.

Table 2. Schedule for Completion of Goals, Objectives, and Tasks

Goal	Objective	Task	Target Date	Completed Date
1. Develop historic preservation standards	1.1 Establish HPC	1.1.1 Identify composition/representation of commissioners	1 year
		1.1.2 Establish a selection process of commission members	1 year
		1.1.3 Formalize role of HPC	1 year
	1.2 Create historic preservation ordinance	1.2.1 Establish a local register/inventory	1-2 years
		1.2.2 Establish criteria for designation	1-2 years
		1.2.3 Establish a process to designate	1-2 years
		1.2.4 Establish process for alterations, moving, and demolition	2-3 years
		1.2.5 Consider a process for financial hardships and appeals	2-3 years
		1.2.6 Establish process/criteria for the historic districts and/or overlay zones	2-3 years
	1.3 Develop design guidelines	1.3.1 Institute design guidelines	2-3 years
2. Identify places and structures of historical significance	2.1 Identify historic and cultural places	2.1.1 Complete a city-wide historic context statement	1 year
		2.1.2 Conduct a city-wide intensive survey	1 year
3. Foster public understanding and involvement	3.1 Increase the visibility of heritage sites, structures, buildings and objects	3.1.1 Incorporate a signage program	3-5 years
	3.2 Utilize existing archives/ongoing research to include oral interviews	3.2.1 Conduct oral interviews	3-5 years
4. Promote the private and public use of historic places and structures	4.1: Promote adaptive use for blighted properties	4.1.1: Use financial incentives to promote adaptive use of blighted properties.	2-3 years
	4.2: Develop local grants/incentives for preservation activities	4.2.1: Apply to become a CLG	1-2 years
		4.2.2: Develop a City of Henderson Historic Preservation Revolving Fund	5-6 years

7. FUTURE RECOMMENDATIONS

Additional objectives could include those suggested at the public meetings held by the City of Henderson and included in future updates for this historic preservation plan.

- 1) Union Pacific Railroad Trail offers potential for public interpretation on importance of railroad to the growth, development, and settlement of the area. The City should consider implementing an interpretive signage program, working with local citizens and the Henderson Historical Society to develop a local exhibit to be displayed at City Hall, or another local landmark where the public can enjoy it.
- 2) Overlay Preservation Plan with redevelopment plans. The City can consider developing design guidelines for specific projects aimed at changing historic buildings in their community. These guidelines can aid home owners and business owners of historic buildings on how to properly rehabilitate or restore their historic buildings, using the Secretary of Interior's Standards for the Treatment of Historic Properties, for projects such as façade restorations in the commercial core of downtown Henderson.
- 3) Advertise the signage program. The City should consider how to advertise the interpretive signage that may be displayed all over the city. Effective ways to advertise this can be through developing local tour maps of city sites that have signage. These tour maps can be given out at the chamber of commerce, the city's visitor center, city hall, public libraries, and school libraries, to name a few. Another option is to incorporate large permanent tour maps in key locations in the city that have large amounts of pedestrian traffic, such as shopping areas and entertainment venues.
- 4) Native American Recognition. Native American history is an important part of the heritage of Henderson. The City should consider working with the Henderson Historical Society and local tribes to implement public displays, informative pamphlets, and other displays dedicated to this area of its history.
- 5) Preservation education and participation programs for low-income residents. Installing programs to better educate the public on how to care for their historic house will take a great amount of effort and dedication. This goal will need to be structured with many avenues of providing guidance to homeowners.
- 6) Promotion of local tourism/cultural heritage. Local tourism will help Henderson display its proud heritage to those residing in the city and those visiting. Local tourism is achieved in several ways, such as aforementioned tour maps that plot out sites with interpretive signage, public displays, landmark venues such as restaurants and movie theaters, and advertisements online, on TV and radio. There are several ways to promote local tourism; these should be considered for future preservation plan updates.

APPENDIX D
Historic Context

BASIC TOWNSITE HISTORIC CONTEXT REPORT

The following Historic Context Report for the Basic Townsite homes is excerpted from Courtney Mooney's Historic Resource Survey Report: Basic Magnesium, Inc., Basic Townsite Homes Vol. V, Henderson, Clark County, Nevada, 2007. It provides general historic background for Basic Townsite development. Conditions specific to this survey, Vol. VIII, are documented in Chapter 2 of this survey report.

. . . Basic Townsite homes [are] . . . representations of the massive wartime building effort undertaken by the United States Government during World War II to satisfy the additional industrial and housing demands. During this time, industrialists entered into lucrative partnerships with the government to construct and expand thousands of war plants such as Basic Magnesium, Inc. Architects and engineers came up with ingenious, practical solutions to wartime construction challenges, with an emphasis on speed and economic efficiency. War workers migrated by the millions to areas offering defense industry jobs as they struggled to recover from the Depression years. Public housing projects were re-assessed for their use as defense housing, and many unfinished public housing projects were quickly converted to defense housing, with war workers and their families receiving priority. After the war, most defense housing was converted to low-rent housing units, or sold cheaply when the industrial defense projects were concluded and housing was no longer needed, as was the case with the Basic Townsite.¹²

. . . Basic Townsite homes are [also] significant [as] example[s] of temporary wartime construction, as shown by the simple exterior design detail, and pre-fabricated wood components and wood foundations.¹³ The pre-fabricated components and construction methods were streamlined for mass-production and quick and efficient execution in the field in order to complete as many houses as possible in the shortest period of time. The plan of the surrounding neighborhood, with its complex curvilinear design, was designed to thwart enemy attack, while using the most modern and up-to-date ideas on neighborhood planning stemming from the "Picturesque Ideal" adopted by the Federal Housing Administration in the 1930s.

Early Settlement History of Surrounding Area

The physical development of the Las Vegas area began in the mid-1800s as a small number of ranches nestled in a valley dependent upon rich artesian wells and gushing natural springs. The valley had long been the home to Native Americans who cherished the oasis-like environment ringed by mountains. In the late 1700s, Spanish missionaries and explorers began to forge a trail beginning in present day Santa Fe, New Mexico and ending in Los Angeles, California. The trail, called the Old Spanish Trail, went north into central Utah and continued downward into southern Nevada. In 1829, the first known European explorers to the area deviated from the Old Spanish Trail in search of water and a shortcut west, inadvertently stumbling across the lush Las Vegas valley. Within two decades, a crude wagon road was established along the Old Spanish Trail between Salt Lake City and southern California. As mining became a major industry of the area with the discovery of vast deposits of minerals and precious metals, the road was used heavily by wagons to deliver mining supplies and equipment. Located roughly midway along the trail, the Las Vegas valley became a natural stop-off point for travelers to re-stock supplies and water from the Las Vegas Springs. The abundant natural resources and prime location became the impetus that created the City of Las Vegas as it is known today.

In 1902, the wagon road was replaced by the San Pedro, Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railroad, which ran from Salt Lake City to Los Angeles. Construction through Las Vegas was completed in 1905. Las Vegas was chosen as a stop-off point for the trains to stock up on supplies and water. As a result, vast amounts of land was purchased on speculation resulting in two competing townships, one on each side of the railroad tracks. The settlement which eventually became known as Las Vegas was on the east side of the tracks, and was originally called Clark's Las Vegas Townsite for the owner of the railroad, Montana Senator William Clark. The land was ultimately owned by the railroad, which in 1905 staked out the blocks and lots and held an auction in May of that year, selling half of the available 1,200 lots within the first two days, purchased mostly by speculators from Los Angeles and Salt Lake City.

The original Clark's Las Vegas townsite developed into downtown Las Vegas as it is known today. Las Vegas became an incorporated city and adopted its first charter on March 16, 1911. At the time of incorporation, the city encompassed 19.18 square miles, and had approximately 800 inhabitants, less than 1 percent of the States total population. By 1920 the population had grown to 2,304, and by 1930 the population nearly doubled with 5,165 inhabitants.

Boulder Dam

In 1905, the same year Las Vegas was founded, the Colorado River flooded the Imperial Valley of California, destroying millions of dollars' worth of crops and leaving the area flooded for almost two years. This prompted the Reclamation Service Branch of the Department of the Interior to begin studying possible sites for a dam. By 1919 they had narrowed the list to two locations, Boulder Canyon and Black Canyon, two deep gorges located twenty miles apart from each other. In April 1923, after roughly two years of full-scale geological testing on both canyons, a team of engineers concluded that Black Canyon was the most geologically stable location, high enough to support a towering dam, and narrow enough to fill with a predictable volume of concrete. Also, Black Canyon was easier to reach, being just thirty miles from the train station in Las Vegas.¹⁴

In 1928, Congress finally passed the Boulder Canyon Project Act, after five years of debate between state Commissioners from Arizona, California, Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah, and Wyoming who could not decide how to divide the water rights. The contract to construct the dam was awarded to Six Companies, Inc. of San Francisco for $48,890,000, the largest labor contract awarded by the United States Government up to that time.¹⁵ It did not take long for word to spread about the gigantic government undertaking, and thousands of out-of-work laborers began to pour into the Las Vegas area looking for work and housing. Las Vegas began to vigorously pursue New Deal funds to construct housing for the workforce; however, during a visit in 1929 Interior Secretary Raymond Wilbur and Commissioner of Reclamation Elwood Mead announced they had no intentions of basing the workers in Las Vegas for several reasons, one of which was the sixty mile a day round trip required for the construction force. Secretary Wilbur and Commissioner Mead preferred instead to build a “temporary” government town closer to the dam site and plans for Boulder City were quickly drawn up and construction began in 1931. Boulder Dam, now called Hoover Dam, was completed in 1936 and Boulder City quickly became a permanent town, servicing thousands of tourists each year who came to see the new “world wonder.”

World War II

With the advent of World War II the government, fearing an attack on the western coast, began feverishly building military bases and war industry plants throughout the western United States. The overwhelming support for the construction of Hoover Dam and the New Deal programs, as well as the inexpensive power and water provided by the dam, encouraged the War Department to build in the Las Vegas area. The first project was in 1940, a small marine auxiliary base at Boulder City’s airport consisting of a hangar, storage tanks, and a dormitory for the crews servicing navy planes. More significant were the installations of the Army Air Gunnery Range, and Basic Magnesium, Incorporated.

Las Vegas Army Air Force Gunnery School

In 1940 the United States Army Air Corps came to Las Vegas to determine whether the community airport could be used as a training facility. The existing airport was located eight miles northeast of town and owned by Western Air Express who had previously resisted efforts to build a municipal airport on its property. With American security threatened by Hitler, the government disregarded Western’s wishes and Las Vegas civic organizations, backed by city and county officials, purchased the property and upgraded the facilities. The airport was then leased to the Army Air Corps for a dollar a year. In 1941, the Las Vegas Army Air Force Gunnery School opened with nearly 2,000 men stationed at the airfield. Over the course of the war, the influx of workers, contractors, business and military personnel nearly doubled the population of Las Vegas which, in 1940, was 8,422. By 1943 approximately 8,000 servicemen were stationed at the airfield, rising to nearly 11,000 by 1946. After the war ended, the city asked the government to make the airfield a permanent facility and commercial air traffic was moved to another facility, now McCarran Airport. In 1950 the air base became Nellis Air Force Base, named after William Harrell Nellis, a soldier from Las Vegas who was killed in WWII.

Basic Magnesium Incorporated (BMI)

In 1941 the United States Government announced plans to construct a giant magnesium plant near Las Vegas. One of the principal figures behind the creation of this plant was a Cleveland businessman named Howard P. Eells. Eells’ firm held the patent for a particular type of refractory which could be manufactured from either magnetite or brucite. Since the 1930s Eells’ factory, Basic Refractories, Incorporated (BRI), had been producing heat-resistant brick used to line the inner walls of high-temperature furnaces.¹⁶ Eells’ geologists had been scouring the west for some time, searching for large deposits of raw materials and were especially interested in the high grade and size of the brucite and magnetite deposits near Gabbs, located in Nye County, Nevada. This site turned out to be the largest deposit in the world containing more than 70,000,000 tons of commercial grade ore.¹⁷ Eells quickly acquired the mineral rights to the land and began shipping the ore back to Ohio in 1936.

In 1940 the newspapers began reporting the bombing of England by the Germans using planes made of a new light metal called magnesium. In addition, the planes carried bombs also manufactured using magnesium alloys. Indeed, Germany had already erected magnesium plants in the magnesium rich areas of Austria, and Russia had several in the far east. All were kept a precious military secret by the three world powers.

Eells quickly realized the military importance of his magnetite and, with the help of BRI geologist John Lowman, began to immediately research the manufacturing of magnesium from brucite and magnetite. However, his company had neither the facilities nor the technical knowledge needed to complete the manufacturing process. It was soon learned, after a discussion with the Mining Department of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation (RFC), that the federal government might be interested in making an industrial loan to facilitate experimentation in this field. As troops continued to invade Europe, the United States decided to create a system of defense based on the production of war materials. The federally controlled Defense Plant Corporation (DPC) was organized, and Charles B. Henderson of Elko, Nevada, a former U.S. Senator and Chairman of the Board of the RFC, became a member of the Board of Directors. Henderson was very interested in the economic benefits of the magnesium mines in Gabbs and would prove to be a very influential player in facilitating the construction of BMI. It was therefore determined that the only possible option was to build a metals plant near Boulder Dam in order to take advantage of the sufficient water and electrical power available for such a large undertaking. Nevada senators Key Pittman and Patrick McCarran voiced their support, thus assuring success of the venture.

Further research and experimentation revealed that magnesium could be manufactured from Eells' brucite and magnetite ores. Eells quickly brought the good news to Washington D.C. where Nevada Congressman James G. Scrugham had already been at work searching for ways to begin the process. Unfortunately, two large companies, Dow Chemical and Alcoa Aluminum monopolized the magnesium production and fabrication in the United States. These two firms, along with their British and German counterparts, controlled the valuable patents for chemical processes used to transform magnesium into defense products, and these companies were not willing to share their secrets with Eells.¹⁸

As luck would have it, in January 1941, at a meeting in New York with the general manager of Canadian Refractories, Ltd., Eells learned that an English company, Magnesium Elecktron, Ltd. (MEL), was looking for a site to construct a plant in Canada to make up for substantial bombing damage sustained to the magnesium plant in England. The president of MEL was a Major C. P. J. Ball, a former employee of the Disarmament Commission after World War I. In 1923 Ball began selling and then manufacturing magnesium in England under licenses issued by I. C. Farben, a German manufacturer of magnesium. Ball had initially come to Canada to look for possible sites for a new plant there, out of reach of enemy attack. Recognizing that the Nevada magnetite was the key to magnesium production in the United States, the Canadian government suggested an alliance between Ball and Eells. The two men formed Basic Magnesium, Incorporated with Eells as president and Ball as vice-president and together they controlled the raw material and the means to refine it. In May 1941 the United States office of Production Management announced that the federal government would finance construction of a magnesium plant in Nevada. The code name for security was “Plancor 201” (Plancor 201-H for housing).¹⁹

In reality, there were more efficient ways to produce magnesium. To begin, the government could have mined from the extensive magnetite deposit in Overton, Nevada, just fifty miles from Las Vegas. Instead, the government paid huge sums to have the ore shipped to Ogden, Utah and then to Las Vegas, a widely circuitous route encompassing 1,100 miles. A direct route would be 350 miles but there was no railroad between Gabbs, Nevada, where the ore was being mined, and Las Vegas. Eventually the government funded road connections between Gabbs and Las Vegas (one of which is the current thoroughfare Rancho Road in Las Vegas). In addition, the Nye County ore could have been shipped to existing factories in California, and Dow Chemical’s and Alcoa Aluminum’s patents for the manufacturing of magnesium were much more efficient than Ball’s. And finally, water and power from Hoover Dam was not “readily available” as stated by Nevada politicians, and instead required an enormous construction effort and $7,000,000 to construct a pipeline, pumping station, and power transmission lines.

It was apparent that the project was backed by several influential Nevada politicians, not the least of which was Charles B. Henderson, whose name was to be given to the fledgling industrial town in 1944. Along with Senators Key Pittman and Patrick McCarran, and Congressman James Scrugham, Henderson was eager to secure a government contract for BMI as a way of initiating the industrial use of water and power provided by Hoover Dam. For several years, business and political leaders had been looking for ways to diversify the local economy, making it less dependent on the mining industry with its boom and bust cycles. In 1941 Nevada had very little manufacturing capability because the prohibitive cost to bring water from the Colorado River had previously discouraged private investors. Another argument for the location was that it would be less susceptible to air attack than west coast operations.

In its entirety, the process required the construction of a large-scale mining operation in Gabbs, and a refining plant in the Las Vegas area, location to be determined. Initially Las Vegas was scouted as a potential site for the plant, where power and water from the dam were already available. It was also considered to put the plant near Gabbs, but power and water were not available there and the nearest town where workers could be lodged was thirty miles away. In 1941, upon determining that the most suitable location was near Hoover Dam, the United States Defense Plant Corporation, a subsidiary of RFC, signed a contract with BMI to build a plant to produce 112,000,000 tons of magnesium per year, ten times Germany’s production for 1940.

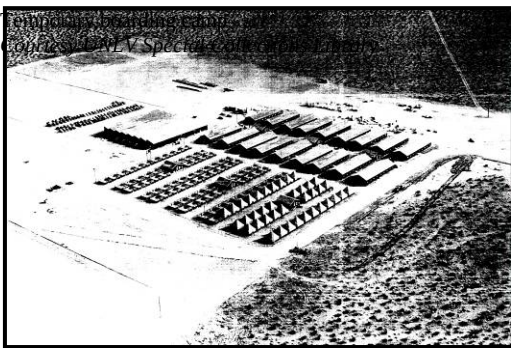

The contract stated that the federal government would own all buildings, land, equipment, and magnesium, with BMI as operations managers, including all personnel matters, although the government paid the salaries. The contract for constructing the plant was given to McNeil Construction Company of Los Angeles at an estimated cost of $34,700,000 for the fixed fee of $500,000. The plant was to be one and three-quarters miles long and three-quarters of a mile wide. Another contract was awarded to MacDonald Construction Company from Los Angeles to build a magnesium oxide plant in Gabbs.²⁰

By July of 1941 the plant was under construction, eventually employing roughly 13,000 workers at its peak in 1944, more than ten percent of the states entire population. Ironically, no plans had been made to house the workers, even though the entire country was experiencing an extreme housing shortage due to, among other things, the construction slow-down of the 1930s. Las Vegas was no exception, and could not easily absorb the alarming increase of incoming laborers, families of servicemen, and employees in the service industry, which was enjoying a resurgence in Las Vegas. Much like the Depression years, families were living in cars and hotel rooms, doubling up in accommodations or partaking in the "share your home" programs where families with extra rooms rented to those in need. Rent hiking reached scandalous proportions and tourists were being turned away as there were no available accommodations.

During the early phases of the BMI plant construction, the workers were housed in tents or other shelters with no running water, electricity or proper sanitation. Las Vegas assumed it would receive federal funding to build homes for the workers, and private developers wanted wartime restrictions on building materials to be lifted. Eells preferred Boulder City but the Bureau of Reclamation was against this, stating that Boulder City did not have the housing and services to accommodate 10,000 workers and their families. Controversy arose as local civic leaders and politicians in Las Vegas, lead by the late Key Pittman's recent replacement, Senator Berkeley Bunker, rose against the construction of a new town, fearing Las Vegas would lose tax benefits from the influx of population. However, it was clear that Las Vegas lacked the water, sewer and other utilities necessary for an immediate population increase of 10,000 people. In addition, as with the Hoover Dam project, Las Vegas was considered unsuitable for housing because of the ready availability of liquor, gambling, and prostitution.²¹ A compromise was reached with the approval of a separate but "temporary" townsite composed of "demountable" homes, while throwing in one thousand additional building permits for Las Vegas.

Eells agreed to build some homes near the plant but was against having to build an entire town that included a school, hospital, stores, recreation, water and power. He was forced to change his mind when the DPC and other federal agencies refused funding for employee housing unless U.S. Public Health Service Standards were met. The housing contract was awarded to McNeil Construction Company and in September 1941, work began on the plant and Basic Townsite.

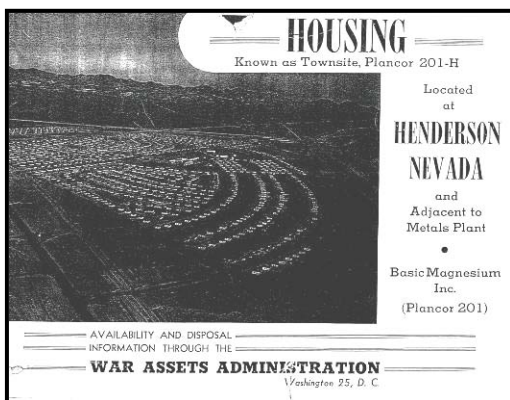

By September of 1942, with still more than 11,000 workers living in tents, described in the Saturday Evening Post as "picturesquely squalid discomfort", living in "trailers and tents, abandoned mine shafts or sleeping in cars,” the plant began production.²² Only 1,000 workers, both BMI and McNeil Construction, lived in homes near Las Vegas. That same year, construction began on 1000 new single-family homes in the Basic Townsite, as well as the 300-unit Victory Village, or Victory Housing Units, located on the east side of Boulder Highway (see Streetmap of Plant Area, following page). The Victory Village contained a school, recreation center, apartments,²³ dormitories and other community services such as stores and a cafeteria.²⁴ This was still not enough to satisfy the needs of the incoming workers BMI was recruiting from the southern states. Mostly black, these workers were forced to live in segregated housing, called Carver Park, a 324-unit housing facility with one- two-, and three-bedroom apartments for families, as well as dormitories for the single workers, recreation areas and a grammar school. However, this was still insufficient, causing such concern that union officials began to make demands on the Defense Housing Corporation to include air-conditioning, electric refrigeration and “fireproof construction” (consisting of slow-burning redwood) in the homes.

The 1,000 new Basic Townsite homes, including roughly 300 three-bedroom homes and 700 two-bedroom homes were explained to the tenants in a government published brochure, “Housing Known as Townsite, Plancor 201-H Located at Henderson, Nevada and Adjacent to Metals Plant Basic Magnesium Inc. (Plancor 201)”. The two-bedroom homes were 620 square feet with eight-foot ceilings. The three bedroom homes were 785 square feet with eight-foot ceilings.

These were included within the entire Basic Townsite which encompassed residential units as well as retail, and recreational and city services. According to an article in the Las Vegas Review-Journal, dated May 5, 1942, the site occupied approximately 400 acres and is subdivided into 27 master blocks with 60 by 100 feet lots. The streets and lots of the Basic Townsite homes are unique, laid in a curvilinear pattern as part of a larger, complex pattern designed to confuse an enemy attack. All the streets were to be oiled and adequate fire protection was provided with plugs located at critical points. The architects of the homes and site were Lescher and Mahoney of Phoenix, Arizona. They designed the plan such that the homes were oriented to take advantage of the prevailing breeze and protection from the summer sun. Although this is debatable as “the front walls of the houses do not parallel the street front, but rather face into the southwest.”²⁵

The homes were pre-fabricated, using “dismountable” construction, “built on the production line principle, the same as used in the automobile industry. The house is fabricated in panels at the mill site, the panels being designed and constructed for floors, partitions and roofs.”²⁶ It is known through building plans for the Women’s Apartments that the homes were constructed of redwood. There were roughly 27 different configurations in the manner of assembly, with 54 different color schemes for the exterior and interior. Carports were provided for every house, “worked into the terrain [to] provide cooling shadows from the afternoon sun.”²⁷ The houses were provided with electric heating and cooling. They had plywood paneled walls and ceilings with wood floors. All bathrooms were equipped with combination tub and shower, linoleum floors and white fixtures. The all-electric kitchens had linoleum floors and were provided with large utility rooms and a breakfast and dining nook, formed by the outer walls of the house and utility closet. All roof and ceiling spaces were insulated with a rockwool blanket, and the outside walls were covered with heavy craft paper before the drop wood siding was applied.²⁸

Conclusion

Shortly after the controversy over the townsite subsided, Howard Eells decided that the project had exceeded the management capabilities of BMI, and sold his interest in the project to Anaconda Copper, a company more equipped and experienced to handle projects of this magnitude. Anaconda assumed responsibilities of the plant in October 1942, less than two months after the plant began production. Under Anaconda's management, the townsite continued to grow with a bank, Sheriff's office, stores, hospital, a post office and a twelve-grade school and auditorium. By 1943 Basic Townsite had become the third largest city in Nevada. Anaconda operated the plant until it ceased magnesium production in 1944.

Due to surplus magnesium stock piles and the exigencies of war, the War Production Board ordered Basic Magnesium, Incorporated closed in 1944, resulting in a mass exodus of almost 13,000 employees. School enrollment fell by more than two-thirds and more than half of the homes in surrounding Henderson became vacant. Nevada's business leaders wanted the plant to become the impetus for further industrial development in Nevada, so they scrambled to find several industrial firms to rent the vast complex. It was difficult to find a private buyer for the plant because the city of Henderson, so named for the Senator Charles B. Henderson in 1944, was included in the assets.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation assumed control of the plant as soon as it was closed. Seeing the value of the plant for continued industrial use, the RFC tried to operate the plant on a multiple tenant basis such as small industries, a movie studio, and warehousing.²⁹ Eventually, Stauffer Chemical Company signed a lease in May 1945, bringing more than three hundred personnel from other Stauffer plants. This was the beginning of the present-day industrialization of southern Nevada. Additional tenants included Western Electrochemical Company, a pioneer company in the field of guided missile propellants and electrolytic manganese. WECO brought an additional seven hundred employees.

Further industrialization of southern Nevada depended greatly on the accessibility of water and power, and new interest in the area arose as atomic scientists began looking for a site to test the new atomic bomb. To ensure that Nevada received its share of water from Hoover Dam, the Nevada legislature authorized the Colorado River Commission to negotiate with the federal War Assets Administration to purchase the BMI facilities. Nevada obtained ownership of the plant in 1948 for $24 million dollars, one dollar down, the remainder to be paid from profits over twenty years. Basic Management Incorporated was created to manage the plant. The new company was made up of representatives from each tenant corporation. The government assumed non-interest mortgages and notes and advanced the corporation $300,000 as a reserve fund. The plant remained open as tenants were found and the population of Henderson boomed with the sale of private lots. Many families returned to Las Vegas and Henderson to work for the air base and at the industrial plant.

Today, manufacturing and industry in southern Nevada is overshadowed by the tourism industry. The population of Henderson is currently about 240,000. Many of the original residents continue to live in the Basic Townsite homes, although the neighborhoods are changing demographically as younger families with small children replace the senior citizens. In addition, the neighborhood is becoming more ethnically diverse, with a dramatic increase in Hispanic ownership. The population growth has seen an increase in crime in the area, and commercial development and demolition of many of the Townsite homes has changed the face of the original neighborhood. The survey neighborhood survives surprisingly intact, suffering few losses of the original homes, although the historic fabric of what remains has suffered significantly from alterations and additions to the simple, pre-fabricated “temporary” homes.

Glossary of Terms

Appendix E: Glossary of Terms

Archaeological Site. A bounded area containing archaeological deposits or features, defined in part by the character and location of such deposits or features.

Building. A building, such as a house, barn, church, hotel, or similar construction that is created principally to shelter any form of human activity.

Certified Local Government (CLG). A local government officially certified to carry out some of the purposes of the National Historic Preservation Act, as amended.

Culture. A linkage of people possessing shared values, beliefs, and historical associations, coupling social institutions and physical materials necessary for collective survival.

Cultural Resources. See historical resources.

District. A district possesses a significant concentration, linkage, or continuity of sites, buildings, structures, or objects united historically or aesthetically by plan or physical development.

Historic Context. An organizing structure for interpreting history that groups information about historical resources sharing a common theme, common geographical area, or a common chronology. The development of historic context is a foundation for decisions about the planning, identification, evaluation, registration, and treatment of historical resources, based upon comparative historic significance.

Historical Resource. Any object, building, structure, site, area, place, record, or manuscript which is historically or archaeologically significant, or which is significant in the architectural, engineering, scientific, economic, agricultural, educational, social, political, military, or cultural history of Nevada.

Integrity. Authenticity of a property's historic identity, evidenced by the survival of physical characteristics that existed during the property's historic or prehistoric period.

National Register of Historic Places, The National Register. The official inventory of districts, sites, buildings, structures and objects significant in American history, architecture, archeology and culture, maintained by the Secretary of the Interior under the authority of the Historic Sites Act of 1935 and the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966 (amended). (16 USC 470-470t. 36 CFR Secs. 60-63).

National Register Criteria. The federally established standards for evaluating the eligibility of properties for inclusion on the National Register of Historic Places.

Nevada Cultural Resources Inventory System (NVCRIS). Compilation of all identified and evaluated historical resources maintained by the SHPO. It includes all those historical resources evaluated in surveys that were conducted in accordance with criteria established by the Office, and were thereafter determined eligible for, or listed in the National Register of Historic Places, and/or listed on the Nevada State Register of Historic Places.

Nevada State Register of Historic Places. A listing of all historic and cultural resources that have been evaluated and designated for historic significance on the state or local level. This register is maintained by the Nevada SHPO.

Object. The term “object” is used to distinguish from buildings and structures those constructions that are primarily artistic in nature or are relatively small in scale and simply constructed, such as a sculpture or fountain.

Preservation (treatment). The act or process of applying measures to sustain the existing form, integrity, or historic fabric of an historical building or structure or the existing form and vegetative cover of a site. It may include stabilization work, as well as ongoing maintenance of the historic fabric.

Protection (treatment). The act or process of applying measures to affect the physical condition of an historical resource by guarding it from deterioration, loss or attack by natural causes or to cover or shield it from threat of danger or harm. In the case of buildings or structures these measures are usually temporary, while in the case of archeological resources, protective measures may be temporary or permanent.

Historic Preservation Commission. A city or county board of appointed citizens with assigned responsibilities for surveying, designating and protecting historical resources. May also be called a historic review board, design review board, landmarks commission or cultural heritage commission.

Reconstruction (treatment). The act or process of reproducing through construction the exact form and detail of a vanished building, structure, or object, or any part thereof, as it appeared at a specified period of time.

Rehabilitation (treatment). The act or process of returning a property to a state of utility through repair or alteration which makes possible an efficient contemporary use while preserving those portions or features of the property which are significant to its historical, architectural, and cultural values.

Site. A site is the location of a significant event, a prehistoric or historic occupation or activity, or a building or structure, whether standing, ruined, or vanished, where the location itself possesses historic, cultural, or archeological value regardless of the value of any existing structures.

Stabilization (treatment). The act or process of applying measures designed to establish a weather resistant enclosure and the structural stability of an unsafe or deteriorated property or one which has the potential to deteriorate or to become unsafe while maintaining the essential form as it exists at present.

Structure. A functional construction made for purposes other than creating shelter, such as a bridge or a dam.
